

July 31, 2019

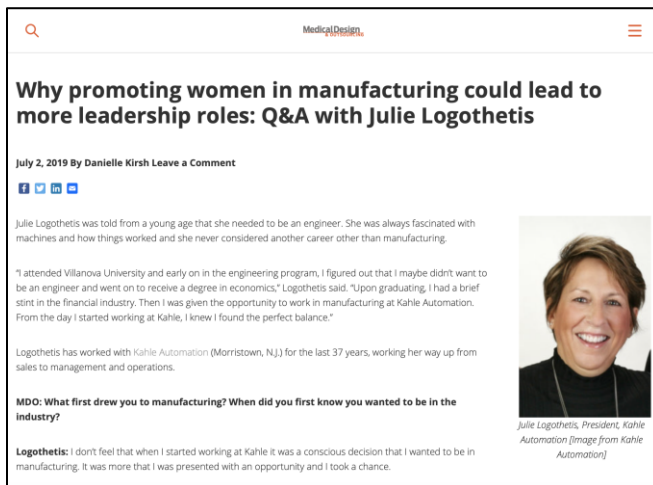

Julie Logotheitis was chosen as one of the “11 Women in Medtech Manufacturing you Should Know”

Medical Design & Outsourcing has chosen Julie Logotheitis, President of Kahle Automation as one of the “11 Women in Medtech Manufacturing you Should Know” and she discusses why promoting women in manufacturing could lead to more leadership roles.

The screenshot shows a webpage from Medical Design & Outsourcing. The article title is "11 women in medtech manufacturing you should know", dated June 28, 2019, by Danielle Kirsh. The featured person is Julie Logotheitis, President of Kahle Automation. The text describes her background, mentioning her education at Villanova University and her career path from sales to management and operations at Kahle Automation. A small portrait of Julie is included, with a caption "(image from LinkedIn)".

Click the above image to view this article.

The screenshot shows a webpage from Medical Design & Outsourcing. The article title is "Why promoting women in manufacturing could lead to more leadership roles: Q&A with Julie Logotheitis", dated July 2, 2019, by Danielle Kirsh. The featured person is Julie Logotheitis, President of Kahle Automation. The text includes a quote from Julie about her career path and a Q&A section. The Q&A question is "MDO: What first drew you to manufacturing? When did you first know you wanted to be in the industry?". Julie's response is: "I don't feel that when I started working at Kahle it was a conscious decision that I wanted to be in manufacturing. It was more that I was presented with an opportunity and I took a chance." A small portrait of Julie is included, with a caption "Julie Logotheitis, President, Kahle Automation [image from Kahle Automation]".

Click the above image to view this article.